

Matt Dixon Bio

Matt has worked in local government administration for twenty-seven years. He earned a B.A. from Weber State University and an M.P.A. from Brigham Young University. Prior to becoming a city manager, Matt worked as a court clerk, court supervisor, and court administrator. In 2004 Matt was awarded the Utah Justice Court Clerk of the Year. Since his years of court administrative work, Matt has worked as a city manager for South Weber City, Utah and he has been employed as the City Manager for South Ogden City since 2010.

Matt has had the privilege of serving as Treasurer and President of the Utah City and County Management Association and has represented the Utah League of Cities and Towns on the Government Efficiency Sub-committee of the Governor's Unified Economic Opportunity Commission. For many years Matt has enjoyed consulting with local government entities in helping them develop, implement and execute effective strategic plans.

Matt believes the best part of working for local government continues to be the great people he has the privilege of working with and knowing the work he does is helping to improve local government and the quality of life for others. Matt is a proud husband and father of four. Matt enjoys spending time with his family, fly-fishing, golfing, and mountain biking.
